

Rob May

Originally trained in science, and then moving into the field of business, Rob has spent 20 years in the pharmaceutical industry for a variety of companies such as Sandoz, SmithKline Beecham, Novartis and Johnson & Johnson. His experience has come in several different roles including, clinical research (oncology), R&D (transplantation), marketing, sales, business development and latterly general management. Having worked across various Emerging Markets for the last 5 years, his current responsibilities see him drive access to Janssen's innovative products and building their commercial footprint across sub-Saharan Africa.