Dear Friends and Colleagues:

The first four months of the year was a busy one for Anadach. In addition, to several external events described below, our client load is increasing - with several new clients from the financial sector. This probably reflects the increasing investors interest in the health sector. Anadach is well positioned to help both financial, health providers and other stakeholders interested in innovative approaches.

We have been very fortunate to have Dr Jim Rice (Executive Vice President, International Health Strategies) and Dr Kola Olofinboba (Partner, Fairview Capital) who are distinguished business people with significant health experience join our Advisory board - their strategic advice has been extremely helpful to Anadach Management.

Dr. Jim Rice is an internationally-recognized authority on healthcare policy, governance, and strategy development. He also serves as Vice chairman of The Governance Institute. Jim has also served as an advisor to health systems, physician groups, boards of directors, and ministries of health in over 30 countries. Dr. Rice holds masters and doctoral degrees in management and health policy from the University of Minnesota, and holds faculty positions at Cambridge University, Cambridge, England; the Nelson Mandela School of Medicine, Durban, South Africa; and the Program in Health Administration at the University of Minnesota's School of Public Health.

Dr. Olofinboba is a partner at Fairview Capital. He is a member of the investment committee and is involved in a broad set of activities, including due diligence, investment monitoring and reporting, as well as business development activities. Prior to joining Fairview, Dr. Olofinboba was an Engagement Manager at McKinsey & Company, serving U.S. and global clients in healthcare and private equity. Earlier in his career, he practiced medicine as a hospitalist and assistant professor at the University of Connecticut Health Center in Farmington. He is a Fellow of the American College of Physicians.
